

Deciding on Undergraduate Opportunities in Global Health

Some excellent resources for evaluating global health opportunities:

Global Fairtrade Learning

University of Iowa Ethics Abroad Checklist

University of Washington Seven Question for Evaluating Student Global Health Programs

AAMC Guidelines for Premedical and Medical Students Providing Patient Care During Clinical Experiences Abroad

Ethics and Best Practice Guidelines for Training Experiences in Global Health

University of Minnesota Global Ambassadors for Patient Safety Toolkit

Study Abroad

- . See university lists of recommended internships such as those included on the UVM Anthropology of Global Health Resource Page
- . Contact the UVM Office of International Education to start the required steps to studying abroad.
- . Check with the UVM Transfer Affairs office.
- . Check with your academic advisor to ask if they would recommend the program.
- . Check with your major/ minor department advisor if you would like to inquire about receiving credit toward your major or minor.
- . See the left sidebar for advice on evaluating study abroad programs.
- . Reach out to past students to ask how the program was for them.
- . Inquire about internship opportunities that might be offered by your specific study abroad program.