

Think Ahead Be Ready: New Ingredients in the Recipe for Success with IPM

Spotted Wing Drosophila (SWD) is a serious pest of small fruit in our area. Millions of dollars have been lost in New England due to this pest.

ALL is NOT LOST! Growers can minimize loss with careful planning and good management practices.

We are offering a hands-on workshop to build your skills to implement new practices on your farm or teach others how to! This workshop brings specialists from within and outside the region to share important up-to-date, new information for you to use this growing season! There will be sessions on new monitoring
